Survivor of Sexual Abuse Speaks Message of Hope Through Christ

By Alice Byrd '18, Intern for Communications

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C.—Gardner-Webb University welcomes Nicole

Braddock Bromley, founder of OneVOICE

and executive director of OneVoice4freedom, to speak at the Dimensions program on Tuesday, April 3. This event will be held at 9:25 a.m. in Stewart Hall of Tucker Student Center on GWU's main campus and is free and open to the public.

Bromley breaks the silence about sexual abuse while sharing her personal story. Known for her charm, wit, and ability to speak eloquently on difficult topics, she is internationally recognized as an advocate for victims of sexual abuse. As a survivor, advocate, activist, and author, she wants to communicate that everyone has the ability to make a difference.

"There are few topics that are more culturally relevant than sexual abuse," says Dr. Tracy Jessup, vice president for the Office of Christian Life and Service and senior minister to the University. "As a survivor, Nicole Braddock Bromley carries a message of healing and hope through Jesus Christ."

Bromley founded the non-profit, OneVoice4freedom, to stop child sex trafficking around the world. The organization has provided prevention education for tens of thousands of at-risk families and children who live in villages targeted by traffickers. For more information, visit onevoice4freedom.org.

Gardner-Webb's Dimensions program seeks to enhance the spiritual, intellectual and cultural life at the University and to promote a sense of community. More information is available by calling the GWU Office of Christian Life & Service at 704-406-4277 or visiting gardner-webb.edu.

Auxiliary aids will be made available to persons with disabilities upon request 48 hours prior to the event. Please call 704-406-4270 or email disabilityservices@gardner-webb.edu with your request.
